

COBRA Service

Is your business prepared for a disaster?

How long could your business survive without access to critical applications and information? Are backups sufficient to protect your systems? Do you have a business continuity plan in place?

Our Continuation of Business and Recovery Application service or "COBRA" is a hosted solution that provides offsite data replication and failover services in a cost effective package. COBRA goes beyond traditional backup strategies to provide affordable server and data protection while ensuring minimal data loss and enabling immediate recovery from any system outage. This service provides real-time, byte-level data replication to protect files, databases, e-mail and entire systems from failure. COBRA provides both manual and fully automated failover options in the event of a system or device failure at your business location. It is offered as a Software as a Service (SaaS) solution to save on costly software licensing fees for your business. SaaS provides the flexibility to easily add or remove server replication services at any time. Use our service to provide protection, failover and recovery solutions for Windows, Linux and VMware systems along with complete protection for Microsoft Exchange and SQL Server databases.

When combined with other services, such as our E-mail Security & Protection Service (ESP) and our Redundant Internet Connection service, your servers and applications can be fully functional and available even in the event your entire site is down.
